

FAQ: PayNow Electronic Payments

Answering the most common questions regarding our online payments, security and more

What is PCI compliance?

- PCI Compliance stands for payment card industry (PCI) compliance and is mandated by credit card companies to help ensure the security of credit card transactions in the payments industry.
- With the highest level of PCI compliance, we ensure that all standards and protocols are put into place to keep your information secure.

I've always used paper checks. Is it really that risky?

- Unfortunately, yes. Checks are easily stolen and altered.
- Checks can be intercepted from the mail, for instance, and the victim may not realize there is fraud until it's too late, causing financial losses and even increasing the chances of identity theft.

What electronic payment types do you accept?

- We accept ACH, debit card and credit card payments.
- We also accept pre-payments in any of these payment types.

Where can I make electronic payments?

- You have two convenient options for paying electronically: by logging in to the PayNow Advertising Portal or via guest checkout directly from the electronic invoice email notification.
- The PayNow Advertising Portal also allows you to pay one or multiple invoices at a time, manage your account information, view electronic payment history and more.
